Lot 39

WW1 British Other Ranks Medics Steel Combat Helmet, fine example of a 2nd type brodie steel helmet which retains much of its original rough textured combat camouflage type paint finish to the exterior of the shell. Helmet has the brim covering. The front of the helmet has painted red cross medics insignia. Interior with the original oilskin liner system, leather chinstrap with the chinstrap mounts having the split pins. Overall a very nice example of a desirable WW1 steel helmet.

Estimate: 180.00 - 250.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 40

WW1 Scots Guards Steel Combat Helmet, bring a refurbished example of a 1st pattern British steel helmet which still retains much of the original apple green paint finish to the shell, later applied edging to the rim. Side of the helmet has tartan / diced regimental sign for the Scots Guards. Helmet is fitted with a oilskin liner and leather chinstrap. The liner does not have the pink brodie stamp to the underside. Helmet shows wear.

Lot 41

WW1 British Steel Combat Helmet with Divisional Sign, interesting 2nd pattern example of a British WW1 helmet which has a rough textured paint finish to the shell and painted yellow circle divisional / formation sign. Interior of the helmet retains the oilcloth liner with pink brodie stamp to the underside and brown leather chinstrap.

Vendor states this helmet is attributed to the HLI and was worn by Major W M Hamilton, who's uniforms were sold in part 1 of this collection.

Estimate: 200.00 - 300.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 42

WW1 British 'A' Pattern Steel Combat Helmet, interesting example of the very early pattern British steel combat helmet with the short brim, apple green paint finish to the shell. Helmet has been fitted with a later officers type lining system with leather sweatband and satin cloth. Early style two piece brown leather chinstrap with metal buckle fitting. The helmet has evidence of modern rusting around the chinstrap mounts which indicate these have probably been replaced at some time quite recently. Overall an interesting early pattern shell which has been restored to create an officers helmet.

Estimate: 300.00 - 500.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 43

WW1 British 2nd Pattern Steel Combat Helmet, good example of a 2nd model helmet which retains much of the original textured paint finish to the exterior of the shell. Complete with the original oilskin cloth liner with pink brodie stamp to the underside. Leather chinstrap to the helmet. Attached to the helmet is a canvas cloth cover with a embroidered black fused grenade and 'N.F.' underneath for the Northumberland Fusiliers, we are of the opinion that the cover is later than WW1 period. The shell has some rust damage but otherwise a good example.

Estimate: 150.00 - 300.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 44

WW1 British Steel Helmet of the Black Watch (Royal Highlanders), interesting example of a 2nd model Brodie steel helmet with cover to the brim, rough textured grey / blue paint finish with a socket fitting added to hold a regimental red hackle plume. The helmet retains the original leather chinstrap but a later replaced liner system, however this has been added a long time ago. The helmet shows wear but an unusual item.

Estimate: 150.00 - 250.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 45

WW1 British Steel Combat Helmet with Private Purchase Officers Liner System, good example of a British 2nd model brodie helmet shell with the rim cover removed (clear markings where once present). The shell retains much of the original paint. The interior of the helmet has a officers private purchase liner system fitted, retailed by Scott & Co, London. The helmet is also complete with brown leather chinstrap. The liner system and chinstrap we believe to be of WW2 vintage. It was quite common for officers in WW2, who had previously served in WW1 to either retain or be issued with WW1 helmet shells and then have the officers liner added. Overall a very nice example.

Estimate: 300.00 - 500.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 46

WW1 American Steel Helmet, being a M-17 steel helmet with a light green overpaint rough textured finish to the shell. Complete with oilskin liner with a ink makers stamp to the underside and possible 1918 date. Brown leather chinstrap. The liner has a inked name of an officer in the Royal Warwickshire regiment, this is probably a later addition. Three drill holes to the brim of the shell.

Estimate: 100.00 - 150.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 47

WW1 Kings Royal Rifle Corps Regimentally and Battalion Marked Steel Combat Helmet, interesting example of a 2nd type brodie helmet with covering to the brim. The helmet had much of the original combat paint finish to the shell, centre with painted regimental badge of the KRRC and to the side battalion colour flash. Interior with black oil cloth lining having the remains of the pink brodie stamp. Brown leather chinstrap. Some rusting and wear to the shell.

Estimate: 300.00 - 500.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 48

WW1 British Steel Combat Helmet with Trench Cover, good example of a standard 2nd model brodie steel helmet with cover to the brim. Complete with its oilskin liner system which has pink brodie stamp to the underside. The helmet has an original issue type khaki cloth four panel trench cover with eyelets. Also accompanied by a later made leather helmet harness / carrier. (2 items)

We have been unable to remove the helmet cover to inspect the exterior of the steel helmet.

Estimate: 600.00 - 1000.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 124

Rare Converted WW1 Adrian Helmet for Service with the Newly Formed Special Artillery / Tank Service. being a standard M-15 Adrian pattern helmet which has had the front peak removed. The helmet has the standard artillery helmet badge to the front. Original leather chinstrap and leather liner system to the interior. Generally a good condition example, with some service and age related wear to the leather liner. The shell retains a good amount of the original blue finish with some rubbing and surface rusting. With the introduction of the newly formed Tank during WW1, it was quickly recognized that the crews needed to be issued with a steel helmet. The troops of this newly formed unit had their helmets modified with the removal of the visor on the standard issue Adrian helmet. It was not until 1919 that the recognized French tank crew steel helmet was introduced. See page 586-589 of 'The French Army in the First World War 1914 to 1918', by Mirouze & Dekerle for information about these special pattern helmets.

Lot 217

Historically important WW1 British Officers Cuff Rank Tunic, Royal Engineers. Attributed to WIA Casualty, with Sam Browne Equipment. A good honest example of a Royal Engineers officers cuff rank tunic, attributed to Lieutenant Denton Hawley of the West Riding Royal Engineers, and formerly of the Royal Fusiliers, 'Sportsman' Battalion. The Tunic is of the usual heavy cotton material with brass Royal Engineers buttons throughout. RE collar badges of the flaming grenade with the territorial 'T' below. The tunic still displays its damage under the arm pit caused by enemy action in which now shows a certain brown staining to the interior lining caused by blood from Lt Hawley's wound. The tailors label is still present displays the name 'Denton Hawley Esq' clearly. A slight degree of mothing can be seen in small areas across the tunic. Lt Hawley received he's commission of 2nd Lieutenant in October of 1915 and posted to the 2nd Field Company, West Riding Divisional Engineers. After he's service with the RE he would be seconded to the Labour Corps as of the 31st July 1917, likely due to receiving wounds this day, the opening of the 3rd Battle of Ypres or 'Passchendaele'. A good amount of copied research accompanies the tunic, as well as two period 1916 dated communications addressed to Hawley himself from the Officer Commanding 3/1 West Riding RE, prior to drafting back overseas. A cross strapped set of Sam Browne equipment, complete with mounted officers holster (broken strap) and ammunition pouch are included. Good displayable uniform with an interesting historical record. Age related wear and general service wear.

Estimate: 1000.00 - 1500.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 218

WW1 British Officers Shoulder Rank Tunic, Rifle Brigade. Original example of a Rifle Brigade's Captain's shoulder rank tunic. Khaki green barathea cloth construction with black RB buttons and blackened shoulder insignia. A late war example with non belled lower pockets and turn back cuff. A cloth example of the wound stripe dons the lower left sleeve and three blue overseas chevrons don the right. A heavy amount of mothing has taken place mainly to the lower skirt of the tunic. The tailors label remains in situ of 'Archer' of Plymouth, named to 'Burton' and dated '2-4-18'. Age related wear and repair work carried out.

Estimate: 200.00 - 300.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 219

WW1 British Officers Tunics, Two Examples, Ox and Bucks Light Infantry. A couple of original British Officers tunics, one cuff rank and one shoulder rank example. The cuff rank is to a 2nd Lieutenant of the Ox and Bucks Light Infantry with brass regimental buttons throughout an unique to the regiment cord type gorgets to each lapel with brass buttons. Integral waist belted with ticket pocket and rear hooked for the Sam Browne belt. Single pip to each sleeve with lace. A single button is missing from the lower left pocket. The interior displays a very minimal lining and no interior pockets. The shoulder rank example is of an almost identical construction even down to the lack of interior lining. This one however features the battle insignia of an upside down, green and off white triangle constructed in a wool felt material. The epaulettes have a brass pip to each with a light infantry green slide mounted. Leather football type buttons through out. Evidence of the Ox and Bucks cord gorgets is still just visible where they have been removed. A good pair of tunics which have a real 'combat' tunic and 'service dress' tunic type feel to them both. Heavy moth damage, some holes and general age related wear across both examples.

Estimate: 400.00 - 600.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 220

WW1 British Officers Cuff Rank Tunic, RAMC, Summer Weight. A good example of a summer or hot climate officers cuff rank service dress tunic to a Lieutenant in the Royal Army Medical Corps. Light weight cotton construction in the usual appearance of period cuff rank's, large lower belled pockets and integral waist belt. Braided cuffs with two pips to each sleeve. RAMC officers collar badges with brass GS buttons throughout. The interior retains a cotton lining with a period label and a leather strip which has been sewn upon the inner rear collar for wear protection. Some signs of mothing and the odd small repair across the tunic but overall a good honest example.

Estimate: 300.00 - 500.00

Fees: Free Registration: 30% inc VAT* , Flat Fee Registration: 26.40% inc VAT*

Lot 221

WW1 British 02 Pattern Tunic, Attributed to Pte Peattie, Army Service Corps, Ammunition Column, with Accompanying Photographs and War Medal. A good rare example of an Army Service Corps, 02 pattern tunic attributed to Private James William Peattie who served with an Ammunition Column in France & Flanders. The tunic constructed in the usual khaki serge material with GS buttons and original cloth sleeve insignia of the shell head in blue and red wool felt cloth. Brass ASC titles don each epaulette. The collar has been converted to a 'Stand up' type. Three blue overseas chevrons are in situ on the lower right sleeve. The tunic displays its original off white lining with remains of the paper label. Peattie's full medal entitlement dons the chest with the single War Medal which accompanies the lot correctly impressed to 'M2-120062 Pte J Peattie ASC'. What makes this grouping special is the accompanying photographs in which one studio shot shows Peattie wearing this very tunic, with its sleeve insignia and tailors collar clearly seen. Among the other ephemera are multiple period photos of Great war transport like 'FWD' lorries and a Rolls Royce armoured car. A period road map of Northern France and Peattie's Certificate of Employment During the War are included. A good clean set of Army Service Corps dress uniform is included, constructed in a dark navy wool with white laced cuffs and epaulettes. Brass GS buttons throughout with paper labels present to the tunic and trousers dating to 1914. Overall a very nice Great War grouping to an individual who served on the Western Front for several years. Signs of age related wear across the items but generally all very good condition.

Estimate: 1200.00 - 1800.00

Lot 318

Earl of Airlie Collection - Boer War Saddle Belonging to Lieutenant-Colonel David Stanley William Ogilvy, 11th Earl of Airlie, Who was Shot From This Very Saddle Leading the Cavalry Charge of the 12th Royal Lancers at the Battle of Diamond Hill on 11th June 1900. The brown leather saddle of military type is complete with the original saddle bags and remains in generally very good condition overall. The item comes with a plaque stating that the saddle belonged to the 10th Earl of Airlie, however the vendor acquired directly from the family and it is stated that it is in fact from the 11th earl. David Ogilvy was educated at Eton College and Balliol College, University of Oxford. Between 1874 and 1876 he gained the rank of lieutenant in the services of the 1st Regiment, in the Scots Guards and the 10th Royal Hussars. Between 1878 and 1879 he fought in the Second Anglo-Afghan War. Between 1884 and 1885 he fought in the Sudan and Nile Expedition. Between 1885 and 1900 he held the office of Scottish representative peer. In 1890 he held the office of Deputy Lieutenant of Forfar. In December 1897 he gained the rank of lieutenant colonel in the service of the 12th Royal Lancers. In 1899 his regiment was called upon for active service to fight in the Second Boer War. He took part in the Battle of Magersfontein on 10th December 1899, in which the defending Boer force defeated the advancing British forces amongst heavy casualties for the latter (mentioned in the despatch from Lord Methuen describing the battle). Taking part in the advance to relieve Kimberley, he was again mentioned in despatches by Lord Roberts (31 March 1900), and for gallantry at Modder River. He was again wounded near Brandfort. He died aged 44 at the Battle of Diamond Hill, South Africa, killed in action, after leading his regiment in a charge which saved the guns. At his death, the Earldom of Airlie was inherited by his six-year-old son David. The Airlie Monument, which stands on Tulloch Hill, was erected to commemorate his death.
